Many Men and Women, Specialists in Various Fields of Endeaver and Representing All Phases of Religious Thought, Were Among the Speakers.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 .- The Religious Education Association, which has just close its sixth general convention in Chicago called together a great array of speakers and a crowd of listeners. The names of many of the speakers are not known to the general public, but nevertheless repreent men and women who are accomplishing things of more than local importance

Some of the more prominent speaker were James Bryce, the English Ambassador; President Eliot of Harvard, Profs. E. C. Moore and Francis Peabody of the same institution, the latter the president of the association; the Rev. Lester Bradner of Providence, President Henry S. Pritchet of the Carnegio Foundation, this city; President George B. Stewart of the Auburn Theological Seminary, Dr. George J. Fisher of this city, Dr. Hodge of Columbia College and the Union Theological Seminary. From the middle West were President King of Oberlin, President Northrup of the University of Minnesota, President McLean of the University of Iowa. President Thwing of Western Reserve and President James of the University of Illinois. From Chicago the chief speakers were Rabbi E. G. Hirch, Bishop McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal Church Shailer Mathews, dean of the divinity school of the University of Chicago; President Judson of the University of Chicago, and Profs. Henderson and Votaw of the same institution; Prof. George Albert Coe of the Northwestern University, and Miss Jane Addams of Hull House.

The South sent a strong representative in President Mitchell of the University of South Carolina, and the further West was represented by President Frank K. Sanders of Baldwin University, the Rev. William C. Bitting, a former New Yorker now in St. Louis, and President Frank Strong of the Uni versity of Kansas

The threefold purpose of the Religious Education Association is to inspire the educational forces of the country with the religious ideal, to inspire the religious forces with the educational ideal and to keep before the public mind the idea! of religious education and the sense of its need and value.

The theme was treated in its relation to the production of moral efficiency, racial adjustment, social legislation, the application of ethics to industrialism and questions of the method of such production through recognized institutions of learning, the church, the Sunday school, the programment of the press the secular schools the environof learning, the church, the sunday school, the press, the secular schools, the environment of student life, fraternities and adult fraternal organizations.

Although fewer than a dozen of the one hundred speakers upon the programme were women the most exclusive women's clubs of Chicago interested themselves in the entertainment of the convention, being conspicuous as hostesses at a large reception tendered the delegates at the Art Institute.

This association was a Chicago baby, born six years ago. The present meetings show that there has been no diminution of interest, but on the contrary a steady snow that there has been he diminution of interest, but on the contrary a steady growth of the organization and its work. Over 200 new members were added to the present membership of 2,000 during the convention. A memorial fund in memory of President Harper to be used for the free distribution of literature, such as reports of investigations and important contributions to the subject of religious education, and a gift of 1,000 acres of land in Texas toward an endowment fund, announced at the business meeting, indicate healthy progress.

The last session was a great meeting in Orchestra. Hall, which was packed. The chief attraction was the presence of James Bryce, the British Ambassador. The honors of the evening were shared, however, with Miss Jane Addams, without whom in Chinese politics, Chinese industries and Chinese education are the conducted by traction of the forces which though outside the church seems of scales, a wooden pit, a lot of extra spurs and other paraphernalia.

The main was held in a saloon at 1 Oak street. New Rochelle, conducted by Charles Fletcher, who is the town's special dog catcher. At the third session President Eliot of Harvard was the chief attraction. His address was preceded by a strong plea on the part of Prof. C. R. Henderson, one of the best American authorities upon social legislation, for the training of young men and women to undertake the heavy responsibility of studying social problems and building up such social legislation in this country as will effectively protect labor and guard society against the pauperism and crime which arise from conscienceless employers and employees.

President Eliot among other things said:

In order to gain admittance to the saloon it was necessary to give three raps on the front door. One of the policemen gave the signal, but the door was opened only a little way and was held there by a chain. The policemen got a big club and battered their way in. Then there was a wild scramble as the cry of "Police!" went up. Twenty men or so escaped through side windows. One man wearing a fur overcoat took such who don't know just what to do with them.
When the police broke into the saloen two birds were fighting their last round.
The pit was covered with blood, and as the prisoners were being marched out the birds fell over dead.
